

New Book Release

Find out more about this program provided by the Foundation for Educational Administration (FEA) by calling 609-860-1200.

“Drawing on lessons and insights from their considerable experience working in the field of child development and education, coauthors Anthony Scannella and Sharon McCarthy take a commonsense approach to helping children and struggling students learn essential strategies for developing self-control, self-concept, resilience, and other healthy habits of mind that enable them to grow and flourish.”

- Todd Siler, author of Think Like a Genius

Ask yourself, “And how are the children?”

Imagine shaping better behavior and a new future for today’s exceptional children...

Innovative Interventions for Today’s Exceptional Children: Cultivating a Passion for Compassion is a powerful new book that will enlighten any professional educator who is looking to make a difference in children’s lives. Using proven methods, this book has you rethink your approach to punishment and consequence, and instead offers an intervention framework that is comprehensive and preventative, rather than remedial.

Teachers, administrators, school counselors, social workers, principals, assistant principals, and even parents can learn innovative intervention strategies that work.

This book is now available in paperback!

Published by Rowman & Littlefield Education, you can order copies through the publisher by calling 1-800-462-6420 or by visiting: www.rowmaneducation.com. This book can also be found on www.amazon.com and www.barnesandnoble.com.